The Children's Land.

I know a land, a beautiful land,
Fairer than isles of the east,
Where the farthest hills are rainbow-spanned,
And mirth holds an endless feast;
Where tears are dried like the morning dew,
And joys are many, and griefs are few;
Where the old each day grows glad and new,
And life rings clear as a bell;
Oh! the land where the chimes speak sweet and true
Is the land where the children dwell!

There are beautiful lands where the rivers flow
Through valleys of ripened grain;
There are lands where armies of worshipers know
No God but the God of Gain.
The chink of gold is the song they sing,
And all their life-time harvesting
Are the glittering joys that gold may bring,
In measures they buy and sell;
But the land where love is the coin and king
Is the land where the children dwell.

They romp in troops through this beautiful land
From morning till set of sun,
And the Drowsy Fairies have sweet dreams planned
When the little tasks are done.
Here are no strivings for power and place,
The last are first in the mimic race,
All hearts are trusted, all life is grace,
And Peace sings "All goes well"—
For God walks daily with unveiled face
In the land where the children dwell.

FAIRY'S SECRET.

"A trip to the Yellowstone! You are too good to me, papa."

I took her in my arms, my own child, from whose cheek the rose had faded, and in whose deep-brown eyes sad shadows had grown.

She was of a nature peculiar to those whose childhood days have been spent with elderly people. She felt deeply. Events that merely ruffled lighter natures left lasting effects upon her. I had watched her tenderly since her mother had put her in my arms, and left me alone. When she grew listless and the sweet eyes drooped, I laid aside all cares and took her away.

She looked so like her mother the day we took the train at Chicago. Her brown dress, just matching her eyes, lent a deeper shade to her chestnut hair. As we neared a city in Northern Illinois Fairy exclaimed: "Oh, papa, is this another Rome? Surely it is a city built on seven hills."

"Galena!" shouted the brakeman.

"What climbers the people must be here," she continued, looking at some of the long rows of stairs ascending the steep hills.

The city seemed to be laid out in terraces. We stood at the foot of Main Street and looked up at two of these terraces, with trees of an immense height apparently on each.

I settled myself comfortably and prepared to go to sleep. Fairy read a while, but soon drew a locket from her dress. She touched the spring, and the sad look came again to her sweet eyes. I had tried to learn her secret. Was she sighing for a mother's love? Perhaps I had better get married, I thought. I resolved to give the matter serious thought at some future time. Unknown to Fairy, I resolved to stop over at Cheyenne, where she was born, and Ella, my wife, was called away. Capt. Storrey had often asked me to visit the old fort. It would be like old times to see the boys again.

"Do you remember Capt. Storrey, Fairy?" I asked her. "He is an old fellow like me, but a nobler soul never inhabited a human body."

I did not think that Fairy heard. She turned her head quickly and caught her breath. "You wish to stop and see him, papa?" she asked sweetly.

"How well I remember the morning he came two years ago—you were nineteen. He asked for you as if you were a two-year-old. We saw you kneeling over a flower bed, your white dress and flowing hair making a pretty picture." Do you remember I told you to come and kiss papa's friend? How Hal went to kiss you and you drew back so proudly. He rated me soundly for not telling him you were a lady grown. Why, Fairy, it seems but yesterday that you played upon our knees at the old fort. You were such good friends after that. Why, Hal was like a second father." And so I rattled on, lost in old memories.

Hal had stayed at our house for six months and had left suddenly, I thought. He smiled strangely, I thought, when I, with a father's adoration, was enlarging upon Fairy's charms.

While I had been dreaming, we had passed over the great plains, with their huge herds of cattle and pretty Western cities. Cheyenne was reached at last. How changed it seemed! Some of the dear faces were the same. They grasped my hands, these old comrades, and I was young again.

I was surprised when, turning suddenly, I saw a tall, slender lady put her arms arond Fairy and kiss her sadly. I knew her, Elinor, my wife's friend and the widow of our beloved commander. She, too, was visiting the fort. At the hop the next evening it dawned upon me that Fairy was no longer a child, and that she was as lovely as Ella (my wife) was when I first saw her and gave her my whole heart.

But why did the girl look so wistful? I went to where she stood.

"Fairy, Capt. Storrey left last night for California. I am so sorry."

Elinor Aloe's arm tightened about Fairy's waist. Although the dear girl never flinched, yet her cheek paled. Elinor knew then, I think, what Fairy's secret was.

"Are you blind Captain?" she asked me one day. To save my soul I couldn't see what she meant.

She was a lovely woman of about thirty-five, with a face sweet and sympathetic, and a carriage like a queen. She suggested that we pay a visit to her home in Santa Barbara, and see Yellowstone on our way back. We readily consented.

I cannot tell you of that trip over the Rockies. I was inspired, uplifted, awed. When deep emotions pass over us we are sometimes left speechless.

Thus with me, I felt my disadvantage; but words failed to express the grandeur of those snow-capped peaks, as they raised their jutted sides to the blue sky. The deep canyons where thousands of feet below flowed the Colorado—ah, how clearly it showed us that perseverance will wear away the hardest obstacle, aye, even adamant. The Mexican costumes still cling about Santa Barbara and seem to instill the air with a vague, sweet novelty. In this quaint city of roses, so like beloved Italy, I left my darling in Mrs. Aloe's tender care, while I took a trip up the coast. When I met Hal at 'Frisco, I tell you, I felt my forty-three years lightly.

Hal went back to Santa Barbara with me. I was telling him how in the last year Fairy had drooped. She was so dear to me, and so was my friend, and I could not keep the tears back. Hal walked down to the beach and back again.

"Bertie," he said at last, "I am an old fool, but I lost my heart to Fairy that summer I spent at your home."

"Why, man, you are old enough to be her father!" I exclaimed.

"I am not yet forty, Bertie," he said. "Of course, I know I can never win her; she is as far above me as the stars. But I do love her. It came to me late, but it is real and earnest, Bertie."

I looked at Hal. He did not look old. The brown curls were untouched by time's silver pencil. The unlined face, merry blue eyes and stalwart figure showed a man in the fulness of his prime. After Hal had spent a few days in Santa Barbara, he said to me:

"Why don't you marry Mrs. Aloe? She is alone; so are you and Fairy. She needs a woman's care; and Mrs. Aloe is such a perfect lady."

I pondered over his words. As Fairy seemed better, we tarried in Santa Barbara until nearly five months had passed. I was walking on the beach one day when I saw Mrs. Aloe coming towards me.

"Elinor," I said, "I am a blunt old soldier, and I buried my heart in Ella's grave. But I have a deep, loyal regard for you and you are alone. Fairy and I need you. Will you be my wife?"

Elinor placed her hand in mine, and we we went to the old mission church and were married there and then.

We saw Fairy as we came in, sitting on the veranda, gazing out on the vast Pacific.

"Fairy," I said, "this is my wife."

"My mother!" And I left the two—dearest to me on earth—together.

We passed the summer in the Yosemite, where nature shows herself in majestic beauty. Capt. Storrey was a frequent visitor to our home. Never by look or action did he betray his secret. With pain I observed that Fairy avoided him. I was on the verge of telling Elinor more than once, but could not betray my dear friend's secret. Fairy seemed so happy, and yet at times there came that wistful look that so puzzled me.

"Tell me," I said one day, drawing her to my knee. She laid her head on my shoulder, and sobs such as only well forth when long suppressed shook her form. She had never kept a secret from me before, and I was pained. When she felt better she told me that there was one presence she longed for, and who, though perhaps she loved not more than she did me, yet one who, when away, seemed to take some of the sunshine with him. This from my Fairy, whom I had guarded so carefully and so well. Who could he be? Ah, poor Storrey! His chances were gone, indeed. If Fairy loved like this, she would never love again. "Is it unreturned, dear?" I asked her.

"Yes, father, he is far above me. He thinks me a child."

How my heart ached. My Fairy was a woman with a woman's doom upon her. I told her then of her mother—how she had left me and how dark the world all looked. "But, dear," I said, "you are a soldier's daughter." Then she kissed me and understood.

She was no longer listless. She grew more thoughtful, more unselfish and more beautiful. She told us one day she wanted to go to Italy. I never could deny her anything; so she went. Ah, my Fairy, that sorrow has moulded your character—made you the woman you are today.

After Fairy had gone a little boy came to us. It once seemed that my heart contained no room for another than Fairy, but the little fellow with his eyes soon won his place in my heart. When Robbie was two the longing for Fairy was so great that I could live without her no longer. So one day Elinor, Robbie and I set sail for Italy.

We did not tell her we were coming we dropped in upon her. Shall I ever forget that day? We entered unannounced. A tall lady, her bronze hair in a classic knot, her brown eyes sparkling, her sweeted lips parted, turned to us. It was our Fairy. When the greeting were over she led us to a room, and there we saw what had detained her in Italy.

There in white marble was a perfect form in loose drapery. The figure was gracefully posed on one foot, one arm was upraised, the beautiful head thrown slightly back. The expression on the cold, marble face was one of the sweetest patience. It was my Fairy's work. I took her in my arms and silently looked at her, while Elinor softly whispered:

"Fear not in a world like this, for you will know ere long, how sublime a thing it is to suffer and be strong."

We went to Venice, the city in the sea. Unexpectedly I met Storry. I took him home with me. As we entered our apartments we heard voices.

"Nay, Elinor," Fairy said. "I am a soldier's daughter and must go on to the end with this locked in my heart. Forget it, Elinor. Harry Storrey cares for me only as his friend's daughter. I am weak, my mother. Leave me to fight it out alone. Forget the weak words. Let no other hear them. Would that they were not beyond recall!"

Elinor arose and left her. What an idiot I had been. Fairy had loved him all the time. I went out, leaving Storrey standing there.

Fairy lay upon the couch motionless. Storrey went to her and stood looking at her.

She raised her head and then stood up. "Capt. Storrey." She was the self-possessed woman again.

But before she could speak he took her in his arms.

"Nay, Fairy, your confession is beyond recall."—[Chicago News.

Gypsum Beds.

In the vast "red clay" region of Texas and southern Kansas, where all the landscape is of a brilliant red color, the strata composing the hills are interlaid with thicknesses of gypsum, which looks like white sugar. This is sulphate of lime, whereas chalk is carbonate of lime. By driving the water out of it plaster of paris is made. From the same material a new sort of wall plaster is manufactured. For both of these purposes the material is largely mined, as well as to produce an artificial stone called "staff," of which most of the exposition buildings at Chicago are constructed. So-called "chalk" school crayons are made out of the same substance, and also jewelry and other ornamental articles. These gypsum beds were deposited on the bottom of the great inland sea at a period long previous to the chalk-forming epoch. They are composed of lime derived directly from the rocks of the land and deposited chemically by the sea water, which was extremely salt, like the Salt Lake of Utah.

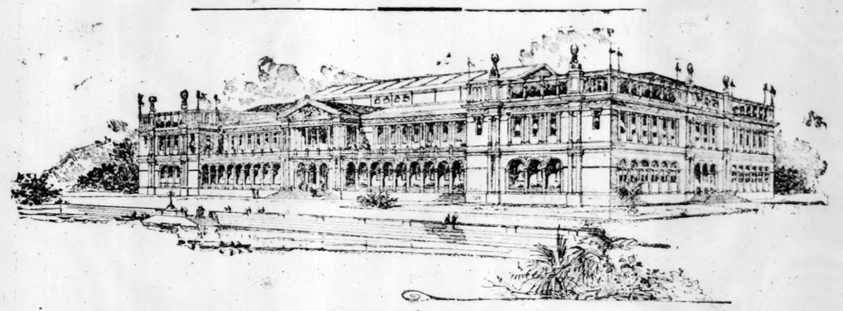
The gypsum sands in southern New Mexico look like beds of snow, stretching for miles and miles. All of that arid region known as the Great Basin is a strange and weird country. The rivers, instead of flowing to the sea, disappear in the plains, drunk up by dry soil and evaporated by the hot sun. There, it is said, one "climbs for water and digs for wood." To find water one must ascend the hills, which are green, while the valleys are deserts. People dig up for fuel the roots of the desert plants, which are enormously developed for the purpose of gathering moisture.—[Washington Star.

Why Turtles Cannot Bite.

Very few people know that neither a turtle, nor a tortoise, nor a toad, is provided with teeth. There is a general superstition that a turtle can bite off a man's finger, but the turtle can do nothing of the kind. Its jaws are very strong, and the horny membrane that runs around the jaw, where, in other animals, teeth are found, is so hard and tough that the turtle can crush the bones of the hand to pulp, but as for biting off even a finger, the feat is, to the turtle, an impossibility.

There are 1695 railroad bridges of various classes in Massachusetts, according to official figures, which also show that there have been 18,347 train accidents in the United States during the last twenty years.

BUILDINGS AT THE WORLD'S COLUMBIAN FAIR, CHICAGO.



THE WOMAN'S BUILDING.

Among a great number of sketches submitted in competition for this building by women from all over the land, the President of the Board of Lady Managers quickly discovered in the sketch submitted by Miss Sophia G. Hayden that harmony of grouping and gracefulness of details which indicate the architectural scholar, and to her was awarded the first prize of a thousand dollars, and also the execution of the design.

Directly in front of the building the lagoon takes the form of a bay, about 400 feet in width. From the centre of this bay a grand landing and staircase leads to a terrace six feet above the water. Crossing this terrace other staircases give access to the ground four feet above, on which, about 100 feet back, the building is situated. The first terrace is designed in artistic flower beds and low shrubs. The principal facade has an extreme length of 400 feet, the depth of the building being half this distance. Italian renaissance is the style selected.

The first story is raised about ten feet from the ground line, and a wide staircase leads to the centre pavilion. This pavilion, forming the main triple-arched entrance, with an open colonnade in the second story, is finished with a low pediment enriched with a highly elaborate bas-relief. The corner pavilions have each an open colonnade added above the main cornice. Here are located the Hanging Gardens.

A lobby 40 feet wide leads into the open rotunda, 70x65 feet, reaching through the height of the building, and protected by a richly ornamented skylight. This rotunda is surrounded by a two-story open arcade, as delicate and chaste in design as the exterior, the whole having a thoroughly Italian courtyard effect, admitting abundance of light to all rooms facing this interior space. On the first floor are located, on the left hand, a model hospital; on the right, a model kindergarten, each occupying 80x60 feet.

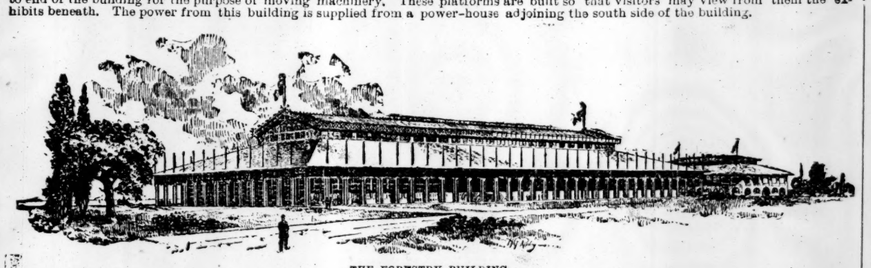
The whole floor of the south pavilion is devoted to the retrospective exhibit; the one on the north to reform work and charity organization. Each of these floors is 80x200. The curtain opposite the main front contains the Library, Bureau of Information, records, etc.

In the second story are located ladies' parlors, committee-rooms and dressing-rooms, all leading to the open balcony in front. The whole second floor of the north pavilion incloses the great assembly-room and club-room. The first of these is provided with an elevated stage for the accommodation of speakers. The south pavilion contains the model kitchen, refreshment rooms, reception rooms, etc.

The building is encased with "staff," the same material used on the rest of the buildings, and as it stands with its mellow, decorated walls bathed in the bright sunshine, the women of the country are justly proud of the result.

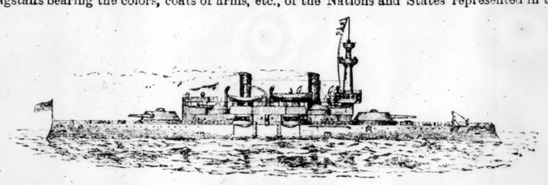
THE MACHINERY HALL.

Machinery Hall, of which Peabody & Stearns, of Boston, are the architects, has been pronounced by many architects second only to the Administraton Building in the magnificence of its appearance. This building measures 850x500 feet, and with the Machinery Annex and Power House cost about $1,200,000. It is located at the extreme south end of the Park, midway between the shore of Lake Michigan and the west line of the Park. It is just south of the Administration Building, and west and across a lagoon from the Agricultural Building. The building is spanned by three arched trusses, and the interior presents the appearance of three railroad train-houses side by side, surrounded on all the four sides by a gallery fifty feet wide. The trusses are built separately, so that they can be taken down and sold for use as railroad train-houses. In each of the long naves there is an elevated traveling crane running from end to end of the building for the purpose of moving machinery. These platforms are built so that visitors may view from them the exhibits beneath. The power from this building is supplied from a power-house adjoining the south side of the building.



THE FORESTRY BUILDING.

The Forestry Building is in appearance the most unique of all the Exposition structures. Its dimensions are 210 by 500 feet. To a remarkable degree its architecture is of the rustic order. On all four sides of the building is a veranda, supporting the roof of which is a colonnade consisting of a series of columns composed of three tree-trunks each 25 feet in length, one of them from 16 to 20 inches in diameter and the others smaller. All of these trunks are left in their natural state, with bark undisturbed. They are contributed by the different States and Territories of the Union and by foreign countries, each furnishing specimens of its most characteristic trees. The sides of the building are constructed of slabs with the bark removed. The window frames are treated in the same rustic manner as is the rest of the building. The main entrances are elaborately finished in different kinds of wood, the material and workmanship being contributed by several prominent lumber associations. The roof is thatched with tan and other barks. The visitor can make no mistake as to kinds of tree-trunks which form the colonnade, for he will see upon each a tablet upon which is inscribed the common and scientific name, the State or country from which the trunk was contributed, and other pertinent information, such as the approximate quantity of such timber in the region whence it came. Surmounting the cornice of the veranda and extending all around the building are numerous flagstaffs bearing the colors, coats of arms, etc., of the Nations and States represented in the exhibits inside.



THE NAVAL EXHIBIT.

Unique among the other exhibits is that made by the United States Naval Department. It is in a structure which, to all outward appearance, is a faithful full-sized model of one of the new coast-line battleships. This imitation battleship of 1893 is erected on piling on the Lake front in the northeast portion of Jackson Park. It is surrounded by water and it has the appearance of being moored to a wharf. The structure has the fittings that belong to the actual ship, such guns, turrets, torpedo tubes, torpedo nets and booms, with boats, anchors, chain cables, davits, awnings, deck fittings, etc., etc., together with all appliances for working the same. Officers, seamen, mechanics and marines are detailed by the Navy Department during the Exposition, and the discipline and mode of life on our naval vessels are completely shown. The detail of men is not, however, as great as the complement of the actual ship. The crew gives certain drills, especially boat, torpedo, and gun drills, as in a vessel of war.

The dimensions of the structure are those of the actual battleship, to-wit: Length, 348 feet; width amid ships, 69 feet 3 inches; and from the water line to the top of the main deck, 12 feet. Centrally placed on this deck is a superstructure 8 feet high with a hammock berthing on the same 7 feet high, and above these are the bridge, chart-house, and the boats.

At the forward end of the superstructure there is a cone-shaped tower, and the "military mast," near the top of which are placed two circular "tops" as receptacles for sharpshooters. Rapid firing guns are mounted in each of these tops. The height from the water line to the summit of this military mast is 76 feet, and above is placed a flagstaff for signaling.

The battery mounted comprises four 13-inch breech-loading rifle cannon; eight 8-inch breech loading rifle cannon; four 6-inch breech-loading rifle cannon; twenty 6-pounder rapid firing guns; six 1-pound rapid-firing guns; two Gattling guns, and six torpedo tubes or torpedo guns. All of these are placed and mounted respectively as in the genuine battleship.

On the starboard side of the ship is shown the torpedo protection net, stretching the entire length of the vessel. Steam launches and cutters ride at the booms, and all the outward appearance of a real ship of war is imitated.

THE SENATE REORGANIZED.

The Committee Assignments of the Democratic Caucus.

Eleven Chairmanships Are Given to the Republicans.

The Democratic caucus has finished its labors so far as the reorganization of the committee of the United States Senate is concerned. It will be seen that the committee provided chairmanships for Senators Peffer and Kyle, the Populist members, and permitted Senator Stewart, of Nevada, to retain the chairmanship of the Committee on Mines and Mining, which he held under the Republican organization.

Either upon the standing or select committee places were found as chairmen for all the new Democratic Senators. The Republicans get eleven committees, just as many as they gave the Democrats.

Agriculture—George, Chairman; Bate, Ranson, Peffer, Rosch. Republicans, 3.

Appropriations — Cockrell, Chairman; Call, Gorman, Blackburn, Brice. Republicans, 4.

Contingent Expenses — White, of Louisiana, Chairman; Camden. Republicans, 1.

THREE EMPLOYES KILLED.

An Oil Train Breaks in Two and the Tanks Take Fire.

A terrible accident occurred on the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad near Munnsville, N. Y. An oil train broke in two while going up a grade, the latter half of the train crushing into an engine which was close behind.

A terrific explosion occurred, setting fire to the oil tanks. The fireman and engineer of the engine were instantly killed, as was also the head brakesman of the oil train.

The blaze could be seen miles from the scene of the accident.

LATER NEWS.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY HILARY A. HERBERT made his first visit to the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Navy Yard in his official character. He was received with all the honors, and a salute of seventeen guns from the battery at the Cob dock. He made a tour of inspection and was dined by Commandant Erben.

CONCENTRATION VS. "SPREAD-OUT."

The almost universal tendency with farmers has been to "spread out" farming. The disposition has been, and to a large extent still is, to run over two acres to raise thirty bushels of grain than to have headache hard enough to raise the same amount on one acre. The reason is that to raise so many bushels on one acre requires skill, forethought, care, good tillage—in short, that kind of crop depends on the man as much as on the land. In the other case there is very little investment of the one and more of blind trust in Providence.

Where a man has more trust than skill he will invest, of course, that of which he has the most. Every farmer operates according to the measure of the man. He may not be able to do as well as he knows, but he will try to keep his knowledge ahead of his hands.

Concentrated, not "spread-out," farming is to be the future order of things on the farm. Concentration enriches the soil; "spread-out" impoverishes it. Concentration reduces the primary capital in the land and increases its production, thus decreasing the cost of production. The Irishman was right when, on hearing another speak of a certain horse as being quite speedy, he replied, "Troth, I know of a horse that 'd trot as fast as two of 'im."

That is the principle to work for. Lay out capital in better tillage, not more acres; in better cows, horses, hogs and sheep—not more, but better ones in acres and animals. Only in this way can true economy and conservation of the farm forces be brought about so as to enlarge the margin of farm profit.

The trouble with farm products generally is that they cost too much to raise. This state of things will continue with every farmer until he sees more clearly and applies more energetically this principle of less acres and better tillage; less animals and better ones.

Slowly in every farming community are a few who are beginning to graduate up and out of the low level of contrary views, and increased profits come to them as a reward.

SPREAD CONSTERNATION.

The announcement of President Cleveland that his policy would be not to reappoint the same man to the same office held under his previous administration, has spread consternation in the ranks of Democratic professional office-seekers. This is according to his expressed idea that rewards are fewer than men ready to receive them, and that to make the distribution go around as far as possible it is well to give new men a chance.

It may be remembered that early in his career as a National character, Mr. Cleveland announced himself in favor of a one-term Presidency—in custom, if not in law. His decision against reappointments is in conformity with this policy, notwithstanding his having taken three nominations for the Presidency, and two elections.

There has been some notable back action in the Democratic Senate. President Cleveland wanted a sound money man put at the head of the Senate Finance Committee, and Dan. Voorhees, one of the unsoundest of all the unsound money men in either branch of Congress, was immediately elevated to that post.

"No surrender" is the watchword of Republicans. The party stands to-day as steadfast for the right, as earnest in its purpose, as patriotic, in its endeavor as it always did. Out of the storm and conflict it is still the grand Republican party, undaunted, undeterred, undismayed.

It is demonstrated that Americans can when they will. Fifty years ago a man in Philadelphia began to put up tomatoes for use in the winter at 50 cents a can. Last year there were more than 3,400,000 cans put up.

The Washington Post remarks that having passed the honeymoon stage, the Democratic politicians would like very much to ascertain who is to split the kindling and make the fires for the next four years.

The Kansas City Journal thinks Cleveland's Inaugural was quite long enough to inform hungry Democrats they might as well return home and go to work.

Secretary Gresham's Assistant, Josiah Quincy, was a Republican up to eight years ago. So Mr. Gresham has good company.

Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, has accepted a $3,600 position in the Interior Department at Washington.

The exact number of Acts passed by the late Legislature is 920.

THE SENATE COMMITTEES ANTI CLEVELAND.

In spite of the extraordinary efforts of President Cleveland the important Committees of the Senate have been organized distinctly anti-Administration. The Finance Committee contains a majority in favor of the free coinage of silver. And this has been accomplished despite every influence that the President could bring to bear.

So, too, do the Committees on Appropriations, Commerce, Foreign Relations, Immigration, Judiciary, Military and Naval Affairs, Pensions, Privileges and Elections, Post Offices and Postroads, Railroads, and a dozen others of less consequence, all contain in their Democratic majority an overwhelming proportion of Senators who are opposed to Mr. Cleveland personally and do not endorse his policy.

In almost every case the opponents of Mr. Cleveland's policies have received recognition more or less conspicuous, while his best known friends have been given inferior chairmanships and been placed upon the less important committees. All this is significant.

The CAROLINIAN feels impelled to say, Good for the new Secretary of the Navy! He says that his predecessor's policy as to appointments will be his policy, too. Everybody knows what General Tracy's policy was. It filled the Yards with skilled and experienced men, and left "political influence" gnashing its teeth outside the gates.

The indisputable evidence of the Census shows that our population of consumers—the people of the towns and cities—is increasing more rapidly than the producers. So long as this continues there should be no fear of over-production, and perious of agricultural depression must be only temporary.

It appears that the outflow of gold has about ceased. Europe has all it desires to pay for, and Wall street speculators fail to see anything to be gained by withdrawing gold now that the Harrison policy of refusing to issue bonds for gold has been adopted by the Cleveland administration.

That familiar conversation that passed between the Governors of the Carolinas would be forgotten if it could be learned what was said at the recent conference between the President and Senator Hill.

Mr. Carlisle has to secrete himself from the office-seekers in order to ransack the ordinary business of the Treasury. The entire Cabinet will presently be begging the fairies to make them invisible.

From all parts of the country come reports of sickness and deaths resulting from the exposure at the Inauguration.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, March 17, 1893

The political event of the week is the defiance of Mr Cleveland by the anti-Cleveland Democratic Senators, exhibited in the reorganization of the Senate committees. There can be no doubt that the Senators acted with a deliberate intention of putting themselves in a position to get even with the President if he refuses to give them what they consider their share of the patronage. While it is the make-up of the committee on Finance that is most talked about, because it will have charge of the tariff and all financial bills, there is not a single important committee that is not dominated by Senators known to hold views directly opposed to those of Mr. Cleveland on a number of subjects; and among Democrats the threat has been frequently made that Mr. Cleveland would be thwarted in every attempt he makes to secure legislation unless he recognizes the "influence" of the Senators to a much greater extent than he has yet shown any disposition to do.

It would be folly to say that Mr. Cleveland enjoys being dosed with his own medicine; he doesn't. But being a fighter of the most obstinate sort it is not probable that he will allow himself to be so easily conquered by the Senators. The impression is that he will give the Senators responsible for this affront to him a chance to see how they like being entirely without influence in the distribution of Federal patronage. If they refuse to confirm his nominations he will simply allow the Republican incumbents to remain in office, thus placing the responsibility of the failure of the Democrats to get the offices upon the Senators.

A democratic Senator, friendly to Cleveland, in a conversation with a personal friend, made the prediction that before half of his term has expired Cleveland will be openly depending upon the Republican Senators for support. One thing is certain, the Republican Senators do not propose to allow themselves to be used by either side to whack the other over the head. They will as a rule act as a unit and will vote for what they regard as best for the country.

"Nepotism" has been quietly dropped from the Democratic vocabulary since the sons of Vice President Stevenson, Secretary Carlisle and Minister to Mexico Gray have been provided with government positions by their respective fathers. Hypocracy is a worse crime than nepotism, but there are people who do not seem to know it.

Secretary Carlisle's order directing that no news concerning the National finances be given out by any one except himself, had it been issued by a Republican Secretary would have raised a democratic howl about star-chamber methods from one end of the country to the other.

Would $100 Per Capita Be Too Much?

New York Tribune.

SIR:—Will Mr. Horr please answer the following question:

Owing to the diversity of industries over a large country, is it not necessary to have in circulation a large amount of money per capita?

If gold and silver are to be the representative of property, would the mines of this or any other country furnish too much? Would $100 per capita be too much? Respectfully, E. B. WHEELER.

Clay Courthouse, W. Va., Feb. 20, '93.

Money is not the representative of other property. It is simply something that is used to aid in the exchange of one kind of property for another kind, and may also be itself sold as property. Gold and silver are used as the basis of credit, and just how much is needed per capita in each country depends entirely on the methods of doing business among the people of such country.

In France, where paper money is scarce, and where there are no country banks to take deposits and receive checks, most of the business is done with gold and silver coin. In that country a large amount of the circulating medium per capita is needed. In the United States the largest bulk of business is done without the handling of a single dollar of what is usually called money. Hence we do not need any such amount of money per capita as they in France. This talk about the great amount of money needed per capita is largely humbug. To a careful student it has little significance.

In some countries $100 per capita would be too little; in some it would be too much; in others there would be five times as much business done on $10 per capita and not use even all of that. Modern invention has taught our people to utilize money so that $1 to-day will facilitate the exchange of more property than $20 would many years ago. It is not the amount of the circulating medium in a country which makes business good, but it is the amount of business done which keeps money active and makes it of use in the world,

R. G. HORR.

Presbyterians in Politics.

New York Press.

The only comment ex-President Harrison made upon Mr. Cleveland's cabinet while on his journey home was that, "with one exception, every member is a Presbyterian." That exception is Mr. Carlisle, who is not a member of any church, but who, like his chief, is inclined to the Presbyterian church, it is said. An old politician who has looked into the question tells me that there were more Presbyterians in both houses of Congress than representatives of any two other churches, and that he could name more than a dozen States whose governors were Presbyterians. When asked how he accounted for Presbyterian preponderance in the conduct of public offices, he playfully remarked, "They believe in election."

Conducted Silently, However.

Hartford Courant.

Instead of an extra session of Congress we are to have, it appears, another campaign—the object, this time, being to educate some of the free-coinage nonsense out of the Democrats in the Senate and House and make them more amenable to the financial guidance of President Cleveland.

From an experience of several years, he knows whereof he speaks. Mr. Chas. C. Jack, Kansas City, Mo, says: "We have used Dr Bull's Cough Syrup for several years, and find it to be as good as represented to the public. We recommend it as a sure cure for a bad cough or cold. We keep a bottle of it in our house all the time for fear of a cold, which a person may catch at any time.

The Raleigh papers state that M. T. B. Bruner, who has returned from Chicago, reports that the exhibits are rapidly being put in position. North Carolina's spaces in the various buildings and pavilions are being fitted up with handsome cases for our exhibits. The pagoda in which the North Carolina head quarters will be is to be embellished with North Carolina cereals and fruits and will be very handsome.

Peach Rot.

Rot is the greatest enemy of the peach in North Carolina. Peach rot is not caused by the curculio, as many suppose, but by a microscopic fungus known to botanist as monilia fructigena. The spores or germs of this fungus live through the winter in the rotten, dried up fruit, on the trees and on the pits of the fruit which has fallen and rotted on the ground beneath the trees. To save the crop the first thing to do is to thoroughly disinfect the orchard. Remove and burn all withered fruit still on the trees. Gather up and burn all the peach pits from beneath the trees. These make excellent fuel. Next apply a liberal dressing of air-slaked lime beneath and around the trees. Burn also all prunings. After the flowers have fallen spray with improved bordeaux mixture:

Copper sulphate (bluestone) 1 pound.
Fresh lime..... 1 pound.
Molasses ..... 1 pint.
Water..... 10 gals.

Directions:—Dissolve the sulphate in a wooden, glass or earthenware vessel in 5 gallons of water. In another vessel slack the lime in 1 gallon of water. Rub lime until all lumps have been broken, then add the molasses, strain and stir slowly into the sulphate; never pour the sulphate upon the lime. When all ebullition has ceased dilute to 10 gallons and use. One half ounce of Paris green or London purple may be added to each 10 gallons of this mixture. When the arsenite is used it will be best to sprinkle it upon the lime before slaking the lime.

The above fumicide will at the same time protect the tree from "leaf curl," and if the arsenite is used will protect against all gnawing insects. Not more than the prescribed quantity of arsenite should be used.—Gerald McCarthy, N. C. Experiment Station.

A Cleveland Namesake in North Carolina.

Mr. Cleveland has only one namesake old enough to hold office, and that young man is Grover Cleveland Bridgers of Halifax county, N. C., 24 years old. Some twenty-four years ago the young man's uncle, Col. Martin, went to Buffalo to receive treatment at a hospital, and met Grover Cleveland, an obscure young lawyer. Colonel Martin thought Cleveland was the smartest man he had ever seen, and went back and had his sister's child named for him, saying at that time that "Grover Cleveland will be President of the United States some day." Grover Cleveland Bridgers, it is understood, will ask for a fourth-class postoffice in his county, urging his claims on the grounds that he was the first child to be named for Grover Cleveland.

A Navy to be Proud of.

The record of the Navy Department made under President Harrison's administration is one of which the country can justly be proud. When Secretary Tracy entered upon the discharge of his duties four years ago, only three modern steel vessels were in commission. The vessels since put in commission number nineteen. In the course of the first year of President Harrison's administration, ten war vessels and three navy tugs have been launched, bringing the total number of vessels launched under the auspices of this administration to twenty-two. Contracts have been let within the last four years, under the appropriations for the increase of the Navy, including new vessels and their appurtenances, amounting to $35,000,000. These vast sums have been disbursed without the smallest scandal or charge of fraud or partiality.

ELECTRICAL INVENTIONS.
This Company owns the only patent in existence for a practical ELECTRIC LAMP for HOME USE. The Company is Electric Lamps for Family Use
can be carried about the house and used the same as a kerosene lamp. There is no smoke, no smell no danger, and you have a Beautiful Electric Light instead of the flickering, smoky light of an oil lamp or a gas jet.
The Wright Universal Electric Company has two large factories, both running to their full capacity, and they are unable to fill their many orders on time. Hundreds of orders are turned away because the goods cannot be made. The Company must have more factory facilities, and for that reason it is compelled to sell a limited amount of Treasury Stock. There is nothing which pays such
BIG PROFITS
on the amount invested as first-class Electrical Stocks. If you had purchased a few shares of the Bell Telephone Stock, or the Edison Electric Stock, or the Thompson-Houston Electric Stock, when those companies were young, your profits on the investment would have made you rich. The stock of the Wright Universal Electric Company affords just as good an opportunity to

The North Carolinian.

Wednesday. March 22, 1893.

☞Speed the plow.

☞Plant only pure, sound seed.

☞Every working hour counts now

☞"Gentle Spring" seems to be suffering from a cold.

☞The Nimrods should remember that the game law is now in force.

☞The Fishermen are beginning to do fairly well. Prices good.

☞The letter of our Washington correspondent this week is interesting. Read it.

☞The editor of the CAROLINIAN expects to be at Hertford next Monday, where and when he hopes to meet his many friends and patrons in Perquimans.

☞With fair catches at the fisheries, good crops on the farms, and an abundance of fruit, the Albemarle section will be "all right." The prospects are decidedly favorable.

☞The attention of persons afflicted with headache in any form is directed to the advertisement of "Me-grim-ine," in this issue of the CAROLINIAN, which claims to be a positive cure. The editor has tested it and found decided relief from its use.

☞Judge Bynum is holding Court here this week and is making a favorable impression. His charge to the Grand Jury was out of the ordinary—original, clear, and brimful of practical sense as well as good law. There is the usual amount of business, enough to occupy the entire week.

☞The announcement of Postmaster General Bissell that the policy of allowing the Republican Postmasters throughout the country to serve out their terms will apply to fourth class as well as Presidential offices will be a great setback to the thousands who are so anxious to serve the country, and do it right away. A good many of them will kick like Texas steers.

☞"A Farmer" writes that he takes and likes the CAROLINIAN because it always contains something valuable and beneficial to farmers. Of course it does. Realizing that agriculture is really the foundation industry, and that as the farmers succeed and prosper all are benefited, its editor feels impelled to incite and encourage them to move forward on the lines of improvement and progress.

☞The editor of the CAROLINIAN acknowledges the receipt of a letter from a political opponent which, because of its kind and cordial spirit, is appreciated. The plucking of flowers from the wall that divides citizens into parties is a feature of political life that should be encouraged. While people may differ as to principles and methods, there should be full agreement in freely according respect to all who have honest convictions and conscientiously acts up to them.

☞Rev. George Baker, former pastor of the Baptist Church at this place, spent a few days here the past week. He says he feels an attachment for Elizabeth City and its people. He called and paid his respects to the CAROLINIAN. He has been called to supply the Baptist Church of Rev. Green Clay Smith, at Washington City who, because of ill health, is about to take a vacation.

—Mr. Baker is a wonderful worker, a superior organizer, a splendid disciplinarian and a fine preacher. What he accomplished in building up the Church while here is a matter of universal recognition.

☞Certain wise-acres hooted at the recent statement of the CAROLINIAN that the Presidential appointive Postmasters would be permitted to fill out their terms, and that the men in the Light House Service would not be disturbed. What have they got to say now? The President and the Postmaster General have both distinctly confirmed it; and now comes the Secretary of the Treasury with the public declaration: "No Light House keeper will be disturbed by me in his official position merely because of his political opinions." Is it much wonder that the "hungry" horde of Democrats longing for and expecting these places are gnashing their teeth in disappointed rage?

☞Along now some remarkably agile hustling is being done by the Democratic "faithful" in pursuit of elusive "loaves and fishes." It is a pursuit which brings its own compensation, in the one respect at least, that it affords grand opportunities for studying human nature and making practical observations upon the relative value or worthlessness of friendship. But every experienced political worker knows that obtaining the spoils of war is a totally different thing from helping to win the original battle. The First District holds its full quota of patriots, anxious to emulate themselves upon the altar of the public good; and it is, unfortunately, probable that a very large majority of them, after weary months of waiting, will be compelled to give up the quest and return to the regular avocations of common men.

☞It won't do for any Christian to talk louder than he lives.

☞Character is what we are when we think we are not watched.

—You risk nothing in buying of Robinson & Co. All goods are warranted.

☞Fat, sleek horses keep cheaply. It is the bony, hungry beast that costs.

—FOUND! The greatest Bargain store in town at Robinson & Co.'s

☞The world would be much better than it is if men would live up to their obituaries.

.....Try Robinson & Co.'s French Peas, California Peaches, Cherries, Apricotts and Pears.

☞The venerable John Barnard, of Currituck, died on the 17th inst. His age was 87 years.

—A nice assortment of fine black dress goods at reduced prices at Fowler & Co.'s If you can't call and examine send for samples.

☞To purify the air of a newly painted room put several tubs of water in it, and it will absorb much of the odor.

☞The definition of "A Friend" that took the prize in a late contest was: "The first person who comes in when the whole world goes out."

—Our store is all Stove Up; that is to say we've got our stoves up for inspection in such quantity that they fill one side of our store. Robinson & Co.

☞It seems to be generally understood that Mr. Cleveland will occupy the driver's seat on the Democratic wagon.

☞The attention of those expecting to attend the World's Fair is called to the advertisement in another column in relation to the "World's Fair Alliance." Fuller information can be obtained at this Office.

—BEFORE YOU TRAVEL call upon M. B. Culpepper, Ticket Agent, Elizabeth City, N. C., or address Arthur G. Lewis, Passenger and Ticket Agent, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, 76 Main street, Norfolk Va.

☞When buds are not brought in too rapidly, and then killed by cold later in the spring, there is generally a good fruit crop. The cold winter was just what was needed to give us an "old-fashioned" fruit yield.

—A lot of boys suits at $1.25 a suit and a few boys overcoats at $1.25 each at Fowler & Co.'s to close, also a lot of broken sizes in men's suits that will be sold at cut price.

☞The CAROLINIAN would mildly suggest that Mr. Cleveland has already proved that the Democratic party is no "organized hunger;" but he will never have such knowledge of the Democratic thirst. The limitless scorns organization!

—Ladies and Misses Newmarkets, $2.50 each at Fowler & Co.'s. They were carried over from last year and must be sold. Also a lot of children's cloaks, size from from four to six years, from $1.25 up.

☞A correspondent from Washington writes the CAROLINIAN that applications for fourth class post offices are reaching there at the rate of one thousand a day. Evidently the Democratic cross roads storekeepers are putting in their claims.

☞Samples of the Pecans and Corn advertised in another column by the "Carolina Seed Company," has been laid on our table, and, without exaggeration, we can say that they are the largest and most perfect we have ever seen. They are neither humbug nor fraud. We have procured a large package of the corn for trial. We advise our farmers to do likewise.

—THE ROYAL BLUE LINE is the finest and fastest Railroad in the world. Address Arthur G. Lewis, Passenger and Ticket Agent, Norfolk, Va., or apply to M. B. Culpepper, Elizabeth City, N. C., for lowest rates to all points.

☞The north-bound express over the Norfolk & Southern R. R. jumped the track at 2:10 p. m. yesterday about three miles south of this city. The baggage and mail car and two box cars were badly wrecked. The coaches are also off the track. Nobody was hurt.

First-Class Brick: The "Thompson Brick Works" manufacture the best brick for building and all other purposes made in this section. They are well burned and are "all right" in every respect. All orders promptly filled. Address F. G. Thompson, manager, Elizabeth City, N. C.

☞To the question, "How did the expression 'turn coat' originate?" the CAROLINIAN replies: The Duke of Savoy, Emanuel, who reigned from 1553 to 1580, found himself sorely tried in endeavoring to preserve his dominions from the aggressions of the French on the one hand and the Spanish on the other, and in the effort to prevent the absorption of his territory by one or the other, was compelled in turn to side with both. His changes being frequent, he humorously ordered a military coat made which on one side was blue, the color of the Spanish uniform, and on the other side white, the mark of the French. The coat was so made that either uniform could be worn on the outside, and thus he could accommodate himself to circumstances. By a liberal display of clever diplomacy—the frequent turning of his coat—he saved his dominions and gave to the world a new word.

☞Cotton at Norfolk: Good middling 9 1-8; middling, 8 7-8; low middling 8 7-16; good ordinary, 8. Corn, 50.

—A copy of Webster's large Unabridged Dictionary, with 3,000 illustrations, can be obtained at this office for $5.

☞Mr. Willie T. Rogers, of Norfolk, and Miss Caroline Baum, of Currituck, were married here on Sunday, Justice T. B. Wilson officiating.

☞"Private Citizen" is about correct. Mr. Cleveland and the Republicans seem to be agreed upon one point, and that is that the "rascals" were all turned out four years ago and should be kept out.

☞The special attention of every reader of the CAROLINIAN is called to the special grand offer, in another column, for choice reading matter at a merely nominal price. They are all standard works.

☞Rev. C. S. Blackwell, of the Baptist Church, has accepted invitations to deliver the Commencement lectures at the Suffolk Institute, and at the West Virginia Institute at Glade Springs, both in June.

PHOTOGRAPHS. Mr. Viggo Lund, in charge of ENGLE'S PICTURE GALLERY, on Water street, is prepared to take all kind of Pictures in the latest and best styles. Call and examine specimens and get price.

LOCAL MENTION

Pay promptly.—Opportunity is a horse that must be mounted on the jump.—Kramer Bros. & Co. are now busy manufacturing fish boxes.—The man who talks most has the least time to think.—Mr. Walter Bell has accepted the position of Lumber Inspector for the Branning Company at Edenton.—The Philosopher says that happiness is the condition of forgetting that you are unhappy.—Shell the streets.—In addition to the new buildings in course of erection a number more will soon be started.—The Versifier, on being asked to give a paradox with a double entendre, sharpened his pencil and wrote:

The man addicted to the cup
At once should stop,
For every time he "sets 'em up,"
He takes a drop.

—A colored skating rink has been organized and practice at Leigh's Hall, near Canal Bridge on Road street.—The local political quidnuncs are all at sea. "Cleveland" Democracy isn't what they bargained for.—Nothing will do more to put wrinkles on your face than worrying about things you can't help.—Just now it is a sole-leather trust that is on foot—The Northern prices keep up shad beyond the reach of the local poor man's purse.—Some of the postoffice aspirants are on tenter hooks.—Many of our maxims are little better than moss-covered errors.—The Listener overheard the following: "I hear that you have a new baby at your house." "Yes, I hear it myself about every minute when I am at home."—St. Patrick's Day was cold, stormy and disagreeable. Several of our citizens "wore the green."—There were quite a number of country people in town on Saturday.—The advice of the CAROLINIAN to a certain party is "watch your corks."—"There is something in your eye," remarked the threat to the needle.—From a certain class of local and district Democrats is now heard the following wail and refrain:

We did not for a moment dream,
When whooping up for Grover,
That, while filling his pail with cream,
He'd kick our buckets over.

—The cheapness of talk is due to the fact that so much of it is needed to be discounted.—A larger amount of coal and fuel than usual has been required this winter, and the end is not yet.—It is doubtful if the devil is ever driven back an inch by the testimony of a stingy Christian.—The new iron bridge over Poindexter creek is finished and it appears to be a good job. Having been built high enough for lumber lighters to pass under it, there is considerable filling on each side to be done before it can be used for vehicles.—A large new Saw Mill is being built at the junction of Knobbs Creek and the Railroad. This will make, in all, nine lumber mills here.—The man who has no aim in life is never ready to make a hit in life when opportunity offers.—The Rambler took another stroll through each Ward of the city the other day and reports substantial improvements going on in all. In new building the First Ward is taking the decided lead.—Love is so closely allied to war that its fullest expression is an appeal to arms.—The business man lives by his push, the politician by his "pull."—Presiding Elder Winfield of the A. M. E. Zion Church held Quarterly Conference here on Friday night and occupied Rev. Mr. Hawkin's pulpit on Sunday.—There was a good attendance at all the churches on last Sunday.—We acknowledge several pleasant calls from Mr. Edmond Gilliam of the Reidsville Review, who has been spending several days here canvassing for a Directory. He is an intelligent and genial gentleman.—Ex-Senator James Parker, of Gates, was in the city on Monday, and so was Brother Babb of the "Perquimans Record."—We are glad to learn that Mr. G. D. B. Pritchard, whose severe illness was noticed in last week's CAROLINIAN, is now on a fair way to recovery. He is an estimable man and one of our most worthy citizens.—Mr. Noah Burfoot is Foreman of the Grand Jury.—Mr, C. B. Kendall, of Greensboro, who has been spending a few days here gave us a call.—The local poet contributes the following:

"O March, why are you scolding?
Why not more cheerful be?"
"Because," says growling, blustering,
[March,
"The whole world scolds at me."

—There is another candidate in the field for the postoffice, Mr. E. F. Lamb. It's now a triangular fight between Andrew, John and Enoch!—Mrs Tamar Commander died at the residence of her son Mr. Thomas A. Commander, on Ehringhaus street, on Monday, aged 84 years.—Charles Spencer esq., of South Mills, has located here.—The series of revival meetings at the Methodist Church continue with unabating interest. Already 36 new members have joined. It's the greatest awakening for years.—The versatile and inimitable Dr. Nowitzky was here this week, as usual. He always draws and amuses the crowd.—Everybody hereabout reads the CAROLINIAN.—Col. A. L. Jones is officer of the Grand Jury.—Sorry to hear of the illness of Mr. B. F. Sykes, at his home on First street, near Cypress, in the First Ward.—Hon. T. G. Skinner, of Hertford, and W. D. Prudenesq., of Edenton, are here at Court.—Brother Mitchell, of the "Fisherman and Farmer," dropped in yesterday. Always glad to see him.

A lady accords to Salvavation Oil the first place for cure of rheumatism Mrs W. F. Mathews, 417 St, Lynchburg, Va., recently wrote: "My little girl's limb was drawn terribly from rheumatism, but after only two applications of the Oil. she ran about as usual. It is the greatest Oil in the world I believe for rheumatism.

GRAND MONEY CROPS.

Highly Improved Field Seed.

To raise pork for 2½ cents per pound you should plant the Improved Jerusalem Artichoke, quite distinct from the common pickling kind; little or no trouble to cultivate; suits any section of the U. S.; yields 400 to 1000 bushels per acre; an acre in them will fatten 30 to 40 head large hogs. Price, 3 lbs., post-paid, 75c; by express or freight as follows: Peck $1; half bushel $1,50, bushel $2,50, barrel of three bushels $6. A barrel is required to plant an acre. Full directions for cultivating, feeding &c. with every order.

We have the "Farmer's Pride" field corn, highly improved by curseives for 27 years past, acknowledged by leading Agricultural Experment Stations and thousands of leading farmers to be the best, prettiest and most prolific corn known. Quite early, matures in 100 days; pure white, has large very deep grained ears; grains are very flinty; weighs 60 pounds to the bushel, often shells over a pound of corn from a single ear; grains are nearly an inch long, very wide and flinty. It has taken over 50 first-class premiums in different corn-growing States in the past seven years. Last, but not least, we guarantee it to make at least a fourth more per acre on same quality of land than if planted in any other crop. Notice this. We will give $100,00 in cash for a sample of better white field corn. Prices: Samples 10c, package of half pound 25c, three pounds $1, post-paid. By freight or express as follows: Half peck $1, peck $1.50, half bushel $2.50, bushel $4. All over this amount at one time $3.50 per bushel.

We have also the wonderful Texas Paper Shell Pecan Trees, perfectly hardy anywhere an oak or hickory grows. Nuts three times the size of the ordinary hard shell. Fine one year trees by express $1 for three, $3 per dozen; 27 enough for an acre; $6 per 100, or more 20c each.

If you wish to see a full descriptive circular of all our specialties before ordering send your address on a postal card at once. This adv is for scientific pushing farmers who know the value of good seeds and know that to read is well, to act is better. In ordering do not send stamps, we have more now than we can use. Satisfaction guaranteed in every respect or money refunded. Address at once:

Rapid Driving.

Madame de Ujfalvy-Burton, describing her travels in Western Siberia, says that for a part of the way she and her husband drove from town to town with horses hired from the Cossacks. They were fine horses and traveled with frightful rapidity. Generally they were unaccustomed to be driven together. Only the middle one—the most docile—was harnessed before the time for starting. The others were not brought out until the driver was on his seat. When the manager of the station pronounced the word "Gato!"—ready—the carriage bounded forward. The horses tore madly on for fifteen or twenty minutes, and it was hard to tell whether they or the driver had the mastery.

On the plain it was a magnificent drive. When the horses were well started the driver let the reins hang loose and they kept up a fine pace. The driver had them well in hand and there was no danger. He calmed and guided them with wonderful skill. Honor to the Russian coachman. Only once were we in great peril. We had just left a station near the Irtish River. The road was near the precipitous river bank. Our horses started at a mad pace and the driver could not control them. They galloped straight toward the precipice that s turn in the road brought just ahead of us. I thought we were lost. M. de Ujfalvy stood on the carriage steps, revolver in hand, ready to shoot the middle horse, hoping that if he fell dead the others would halt. Some Cossacks who saw the danger rushed to us shouting, "Don't fire." One of them grasped the bridle of the middle horse and by an almost superhuman effort stopped him. It was time. We could look down into the abyss.—Manchester Times.

The New Bread.

Attention is called to the new method of making bread of superior lightness, fineness and wholesomeness without yeast, a receipt for which is given elsewhere in this paper. Even the best bread makers will be interested in this. To every reader who will try this, and write the result to the Royal Baking Powder Co., 106 Wall street, New York, that company will send in return, free, a copy of the most practical and useful cook book, containing one thousand receipts for all kinds of cooking, yet published. Mention this paper.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of the New Administration at Washington.

The President Makes His First Batch of Appointments.

ISAAC PUSEY GRAY.

President Cleveland sent to the United States Senate these nominations:

To be Minister to Mexico—Isaac P. Gray, of Indiana.

To be Consul General at London—Patrick A. Collins, of Massachusetts.

To be Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General—Robert A. Maxwell, of New York.

To be Assistant Secretary of State—Josiah Quincy, of Massachusetts.

Isaac Pusey Gray is an Ohioan by birth and at present lives at Union City, Ind. He was a Republican until 1872, when he joined the Greeley movement. In 1876 he was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor of Indiana by the Democrats as a representative of the Greeley followers on the same ticket with Blue Jeans Williams, and was elected. Toward the close of his administration Governor Williams died and Mr. Gray assumed the duties of Governor of the State. In 1880 he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, but was defeated by Frank Landers, of Indianapolis, and put upon the ticket with him for second place. This ticket was defeated by one headed by Albert G. Porter, late Minister to Italy. Four years later Mr. Gray was nominated for Governor by the Democrats and was elected, and would have been renominated for a second term but for the fact that the Constitution of Indiana prohibited a Governor from filling two terms in succession. During the late campaign Mr. Gray was a candidate for the nomination for the Presidency, and had the delegation of his State behind him; but he withdrew.

Patrick A. Collins, of Boston, was born near Fermoy, County of Cork, Ireland, March 12, 1844; came to the United States in 1848; received a common school education; was in early life an upholsterer; read law in the Harvard Law School and in Boston, where he has practiced since his admission to the Bar in 1871; was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1838 and 1869, and of the Massachusetts Senate in 1870 and 1871; was Judge Advocate-General of Massachusetts in 1875; was elected to the Forty-eighth Congress and was re-elected to the Forty-ninth Congress as a Democrat; re-elected to the Fiftieth Congress.

Robert A. Maxwell is a retired mailster, of Batavia, N. Y. For twenty years he has been prominent in the politics of New York, and is recognized as a Democrat of the old school. Mr. Maxwell was one of the leading spirits in the "anti-snapper" convention, and has long been the warm, personal friend of Mr. Cleveland and Postmaster-General Bissell. About a year ago Mr. Maxwell was removed from the office of State Insurance Commissioner by Governor Flower.

Josiah Quincy is one of the politicians of the younger school who has won the confidence of President Cleveland. He is about thirty-four years of age and enjoys the distinction of being the last of the historic Quincy family, of Massachusetts. He was in charge of the literary bureau of the last campaign.

Hawaiian Treaty Withdrawn.

President Cleveland sent to the Senate a message withdrawing the Hawaiian treaty which has been pending in the Senate.

The message was short and to the point, the President simply requesting the Senate to transmit to the Executive the proposal treaty with Hawaii. The message was received without comment on the floor of the Senate.

Republican Senators regarded this action of the President as in line with the course pursued by Mr. Cleveland in withdrawing the Nicaraguan treaty sent to the Senate by Mr. Arthur in the closing days of his administration.

Democratic Senators looked upon the act from a two-fold point of view, some taking the ground that it showed Mr. Cleveland to be against annexation or American interference. Others held that he would send in another treaty more to his liking.

It was understood that the reason for the withdrawal of the treaty by President Cleveland was because he was opposed to the treaty in its present form. Whether or not he would favor the making of another treaty, and whether it would be an annexation treaty or not, could not be said on authority, but a person who had talked with the President on the subject said that another treaty would be made.

It was estimated that the President would suggest either by message or personally to Senators, that a committee be appointed to visit the Hawaiian Islands this year, during the interval between the adjournment of the special session of the Senate and the reconvention of the next Congress.

President Cleveland, heretofore, has been quite solicitous on this point, and made inquiries as to whether or not the resolution providing for such a commission had gone through. He had been apparently under the impression that it had been adopted. He learned that it had not been, but that the Senate had authority alone to provide for such a commission, probably to consist of Senators, and that the contingent fund of the Senate could be drawn on for this purpose.

Hill Calls on Cleveland.

Senator David B. Hill, of New York, a few days ago visited President Cleveland at the White House by appointment, presumably arranged by Congressman Rockwell, of New York, during a visit to Mr. Cleveland.

That his visit was more than a mere perfunctory call is attested by the length of the interview—twenty minutes—and during that time Mr. Cleveland received no cards from the waiting politicians in the Cabinet room. Mr. Hill came early. The great flood of office seekers had not yet begun to flow into the White House. He passed rapidly through the hallway in the public part of the mansion into the room of Private Secretary Thurber, who evidently had been posted, for he ushered Mr. Hill into the adjoining executive office without a moment's delay.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Kansas Farmers Killed in Destructive Prairie Fires.

Prairie fires raged in Western Kansas for nearly two days. News was received from Russell County that seven persons were caught between two fires and perished.

Their names were: William Bailey, Dave Hutchinson, Albert Moore, A. McDonald, Mrs. Lafevre and two whose names were unknown.

Bailey was fearfully burned about the breast and died in awful agony. The men were all farmers and were out tending their stock.

The prairie fire had been discerned approaching in the distance, and the unfortunates had made for an open space where they hoped they might be enabled to fight off the torrent of fire. Quickly getting to work, they cleared off the ground for several yards around them, and as best they could dug a trench around the space.

Their efforts, however, were futile, for as the fire approached the wind arose, and, changing just as it reached their frail cordon, whirled in one awful torrent and burned the poor victims' lives out before they had hardly realized their danger.

THE consumption of returns of comparative crop to the Agricultural Department at Washington makes the following State percentages for cotton: Virginia, fifty-five per cent.; North Carolina, seventy-three; South Carolina, seventy-five; Georgia, seventy-four; Florida, sixty; Alabama, sixty-five; Mississippi, sixty; Louisiana, fifty-five; Texas, eighty-four; Arkansas, fifty-eight; Tennessee, sixty-three. General average, 69.2.

Washington.

SECRETARY CARLISLE received offers from Chicago bankers to exchange $3,000,000 of gold for a like amount of small Treasury notes of the denomination of $5, $10 and $20. Intimations were made that the amount of small notes that will be needed will reach $10,000,000, for which gold will be paid.

THE first Postmaster given office under the new Administration was Newton A. Hamilton, who was appointed Postmaster at Elora, Lincoln County, Tenn.

THE United States Treasury situation continues to improve from day to day, and from this time on the Department will be in a position to take only the more advantageous offers of gold. Offers of $100,000 in gold were received from Pittsburg, Penn.; $100,000 from Peoria, Ill., and $50,000 from the Helena (Montana) Associated Banks.

THE falling off in the exportation of breadstuffs from the United States continues. According to report of the Bureau of Statistics the total exports for last month were $12,982,000, as against $23,850,000 in the corresponding month of 1892, when the demand was so great on account of a partial failure of the European crops.

JUSTICE JACKSON has been assigned to duty over the circuit over which the late Justice Lamar presided.

EX-SENATOR HENRY L. DAWES, of Massachusetts, whose continuous service of thirty-six years in Congress, equally divided between the upper and lower branches, ended on March 4, by his voluntary retirement, was complimented by his former associates in the Senate, irrespective of party, by a dinner at the Arlington.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. CLEVELAND gave a special reception to the Princess Kiaulani, of Hawaii, the meeting taking place in the Blue Parlor. The Princess was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Davies, their daughter, and a lady friend. The call was entirely of a social nature and lasted probably a quarter of an hour.

THE French Senate, at Paris, by 209 to 56, voted confidence in the Government; there was an exciting scene in the Chamber of Deputies, and M. Deraulede retracted his statement that the present Ministry was "a Government of liars."

ADVICES from India announce that the British forces have brought the mountain tribes beyond the Cuitral into submission, and have strongly fortified Chitas. Major Daniell, the leader of the forces, was killed in an assault on one of the villages, and the total British loss is twenty-three killed and thirty wounded.

THE original Bell telephone is now unprotected by a patent. The patent obtained by Alexander Graham Bell expired at 12 o'clock a few nights ago. It was probably the most important patent ever granted by this Government, as it covered the only practical method of telephoning which has been invented. The expiration of the original patent will not effect the present monopoly, as it holds patents on special features of telephone construction which will protect its business.

FLOODS EAST AND WEST.

Rivers and Creeks Overflowing Their Banks.

Floods caused by the melting of ice gorges have caused an immense amount of damage to property and some loss of life in many States, East and West.

From Fort Deposit, Md., comes a story of a night of anxiety followed by a day of flooded streets and houses. All day the people of the little Maryland town watched the muddy waters of the Susquehanna as they swept by, and hourly expected the river to overflow its banks and find a channel for itself through their streets. An ice gorge at Conowingo, a few miles above Port Deposit, was holding in check a great volume of waters. The breaking of this gorge was dreaded. At 2 o'clock the gorge gave way, and the flood let loose swept down, leaping the banks and spreading through Port Deposit. For a time the inhabitants did not know whether or not their town would be carried away and themselves drowned, but when the water had reached the height of eight feet in the streets and houses, it ceased to rise. The flood remained at the same height and outhouses and everything not securely fixed were swept off.

There was a general thaw in the Mohawk Valley of New York. The small streams were greatly swollen, and the river was high. In nearly every village in the valley the cellars were filled with water. The country roads were in a bad condition, and some were impassable. There was a sudden rise of the waters of Tonawanda Creek, Batavia, N. Y., and the result was an unprecedented flooding of many acres of land west of the city. The western portion of the city was under water, and nearly every cellar on the south side of West Main street was full. The Genesee River at Avon, N. Y., overflowed its banks, and on the western side the flats were completely covered with water from six to eighteen inches deep. Large cakes of ice going over the tracks made the passage of trains difficult and dangerous.

Much damage was caused by melting ice gorges in Pennsylvania along the Susquehanna, Schuylkill and Delaware rivers.

The loss of property by swollen streams was enormous in Michigan, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

WAR SHIPS FOR JAPAN.

The Emperor Donates $300,000 a Year to Help Build the Navy.

The principal topic in Japan is the outcome of the petition to the Emperor by the members of the House of Representatives against the Government's fiscal policy, especially the proposed expenditure of large sums of money in connection with the navy. The Emperor in his reply upholds the Government policy, but, to soothe the petitioners, donates $300,000 a year for six years out of his private income, and directs Government officials to contribute ten per cent. of their salaries toward a fund for building war ships.

The magnanimity of the Emperor's act has created a profound impression, and members of Parliament and private wealthy persons are voluntarily contributing large sums toward the same purpose.

KILLED BY A FANATIC.

He Strangles a Girl to Show His Power to Bring Her to Life.

An Anabaptist fanatic has been arrested in Latrig, Government of Saratoff, Russia, for having murdered a girl of fourteen years. He had been preaching before a roomful of people in a private house concerning his power to raise the dead.

At the end of his sermon he strangled the girl with the consent of her parents, in order that he might demonstrate his pretended ability to bring her back to life. After prayers and exhortations had continued for two hours the parents of the girl became convinced that he was an impostor, and complained to the authorities, who locked him up.

GREAT excitement is reported from Winfield, Lake County, Ind., where workmen engaged in digging a well struck a deposit of silver and iron ore ten feet below the surface. An expert, to whom a sample of the ore was submitted, says that it contains sixty per cent. of pure silver. The bed is about ten feet thick, and the ore is mixed with clay and rock.

Ideal Life of the Coffee Planter.

"Coffee planters in Guatemala have a double way of making money," said Carl F. Ebberle, of Philadelphia, at the National. "In the first place they have all grown rich during recent years because of the high price of the bean and the decline of the Brazilian coffee plantations upon the abolition of the monarchy. A very great impetus was given to coffee culture in Central America, and now there is very little good coffee land in Guatemala that is not cultivated, but there is plenty of land in Nicaragua.

"It costs about nine or ten cents per pound to land coffee in the New York, London or Amsterdam markets. When it sells from fifteen to thirty cents the enormous profit is plain. The rich planters spend their winters in Paris or London. There are millions of German capital invested in coffee, and the Germans practically control the trade. American interests are small. In all large cities in Mexico and Central America are seen big German commission houses and retail stores.

"The coffee planters are paid for their product in gold. They pay their hands and other expenses on their plantations in silver. As their own silver money is worth about sixty-four cents on the dollar it is easy to see what it means to them when exchange is thirty-six cents. The life of a coffee planter is an ideal one when once established, for the plantations are at an elevation usually of over 3000 feet above the sea in the mountains and the climate is delightful. The profits from large plantations, and most of them are good sized, are princely and the planters are enabled to travel where they will, for people will drink coffee and as long as the trees are kept in bearing the return is certain. It takes large capital, however, to embark in the business, since you must expend large sums and wait four years before there is a substantial return."—Washington Star.

A Peculiar Racing Incident.

McLaughlin has ridden many differently tempered and constituted horses, but the most "or'nary" brute he ever bestrode was Leamington's son, Onondaga. When Onondaga, for the Dwyers, ran his famous race against Pierre Lorrillard's Sachem at Sheepshead the latter lost through a peculiar circumstance. On the home turn, when Sachem had the lead, with Onondaga at his saddle-skirts, and the former going the better of the two, Onondaga suddenly reached over at Sachem and grabbed Barbee's leg in his teeth. This "savaging," done while the two horses were going at a tremendous pace, caused Barbee to bellow out, but the man-eater, Onondaga, did not let him go so easily. He let go Barbee's leg and grabbed his arm. This last was too much for Sachem's jockey, and with a yell of pain, Barbee pulled Sachem out and away from Onondaga. Here was McLaughlin's opportunity, and with a jab of the spurs he shot Onondaga up next the rails and took the lead. Then Sachem came again, but the ground lost by the desire of Barbee to get out of the reach of Onondaga's teeth he never made up.—Rider and Driver.

Anchor Ice.

The "anchor ice" by which the steamer City of Boston was imprisoned in the Thames River, at Norwich, is one of the strangest of wintry phenomena. It goes by various names. West of New England it is known as "slush ice," and abroad it is called "ground ice." It is not formed upon the surface of water, but collects on the beds of streams. This is the most remarkable thing about it. Many theories have been advanced to account for its formation. One scientist claimed that it was the result of radiation of heat from the river bed, and that it was deposited on the same principle as dew. Another stoutly maintained that it was produced by little spicules of hoar frost falling from the atmosphere into the water.

The most acceptable hypothesis, however, is that the whole body of water in which it is found is thoroughly chilled by a mechanical action of the currents of the stream, and that the anchor ice then naturally forms on the stones and other rough bodies at the bottom. After this general cooling of the water to a temperature in the neighborhood of thirty-two degrees Fahrenheit, the anchor ice will speedily coat a pole, for example, that is lowered into the stream. The nucleus having once been formed, the small masses of ice that cling by adhesion to the asperities of the river bed grow in size, and at length attain sufficient buoyancy to loosen their fastenings and rise to the surface. In doing this they frequently tear up small stones and clumps of gravel.

The anchor ice is clearly crystalline in structure, and in the water resembles a kind of fungus or vegetable growth. At times a stream will be seen full of little masses of anchor ice floating along near or at the surface. Its consistency is often very slight, so that if an attempt is made to grasp in the hand it readily melts and disappears. It is confined mainly to swiftly running streams having gravelly or stony beds, and it is a feature of the winter that proves troublesome chiefly to mill owners. It collects on the head gates of canals and on the racks at the entrances of flumes, and, if it is allowed to pass into a wheel pit, is liable to stop the wheel, as it effectually stopped the paddles of the steamer City of Boston in the Thames.—Boston Herald.

Cooking Becoming an Art.

"It will not be many years," said Mrs. S. T. Rorer, of Philadelphia, who devotes her life to gastronomical affairs, "before cooking will form as important a department in the curriculum of our girl's public and private schools as mathematics and geography. It is in fact on a par with any of the arts, and yet is the most neglected.

"In Philadelphia, Boston and New York it is taught, as it should be, in the normal schools, due attention being given to chemistry and hygiene. The chemistry of food should be thoroughly understood, and is by high priced, trained chefs. Women must be educated in cooking, and it is to my mind much more important than the higher accomplishments."—Washington Star.

The New Bread.

ROYAL unfermented bread, made without yeast, avoiding the decomposition produced in the flour by yeast or other baking powder; peptic, palatable and most healthful; may be eaten warm and fresh without discomfort, which is not true of bread made in any other way.

Can be made only with Royal Baking Powder.

Receipt for Making One Loaf.

ONE quart flour, 1 teaspoonful salt, half a teaspoonful sugar, 2 heaping teaspoonfuls Royal Baking Powder, half medium-sized cold boiled potato, and water. Sift together thoroughly flour, salt, sugar, and baking powder; rub in the potato; add sufficient water to mix smoothly and rapidly into a stiff batter, about as soft as for pound-cake; about a pint of water to a quart of flour will be required—more or less according to the brand and quality of the flour used. Do not make a stiff dough, like yeast bread. Pour the batter into a greased pan, 4½x8 inches, and 4 inches deep, filling about half full. The loaf will rise to fill the pan when baked. Bake in very hot oven 45 minutes, placing paper over first 15 minutes baking, to prevent crusting too soon on top. Bake at once. Don't mix with milk.

"A SUCCESS."

F. J Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., Gentlemen:—I have suffered from catarrh for about five years and have tried several remedies without relief until I commenced to use Hall's Catarrh Cure last February. I must say that it is a A SUCCESS, the dropping in my throat disappeared entirely after the first bottle. It increased my appetite, so that I now weigh eight pounds more than my customary weight. I have recommended it to others and all who used it have been greatly relieved and speak highly of it. One of them was in my store yesterday and expressed his wish to peddle it this winter. Will you please let me know the lowest terms you could furnish it for, as I would like to keep it in stock. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, Yours respectfully,
